

THANK YOU NOTES

Stories of Connectional Giving

www.iaumc.org/tyn

Cornell College

The Rev. Catherine Quehl-Engel is the chaplain at Cornell College. She describes her vocation as love, "the care and growth of souls." As chaplain, she serves as a spiritual guide, priest, and counselor to students, faculty, and staff of all backgrounds — including the non-religious.

"This care is offered amid life's unfolding, joys, questioning, and storms; amid fear and wonder; amid the search for purpose, courage, love, healing, connectedness to others and the world, and signs that this universe and our lives (no matter how messy or confusing) are crammed full of meaning and significant worth."

A group of 20 students on a Spiritual Life leadership team work with the chaplain to provide opportunities for spiritual growth and practice, including chapel on Wednesdays and meditation on Fridays.

"Fr. Cathy," as she is sometimes called, also teaches three courses in the Religion Department: Jesus and Judaism; Suffering and the Sacred; and Namaste, a contemplative and service-learning Hindu and Christian inter-spirituality course.

Apportionment funds from the Conference Board of Higher Education and Campus Ministry are contributed annually to the college. Learn more at www.cornellcollege.edu.

THANK YOU NOTES

Stories of Connectional Giving

www.iaumc.org/tyn

Cornell College

The Rev. Catherine Quehl-Engel is the chaplain at Cornell College. She describes her vocation as love, "the care and growth of souls." As chaplain, she serves as a spiritual guide, priest, and counselor to students, faculty, and staff of all backgrounds — including the non-religious.

"This care is offered amid life's unfolding, joys, questioning, and storms; amid fear and wonder; amid the search for purpose, courage, love, healing, connectedness to others and the world, and signs that this universe and our lives (no matter how messy or confusing) are crammed full of meaning and significant worth."

A group of 20 students on a Spiritual Life leadership team work with the chaplain to provide opportunities for spiritual growth and practice, including chapel on Wednesdays and meditation on Fridays.

"Fr. Cathy," as she is sometimes called, also teaches three courses in the Religion Department: Jesus and Judaism; Suffering and the Sacred; and Namaste, a contemplative and service-learning Hindu and Christian inter-spirituality course.

Apportionment funds from the Conference Board of Higher Education and Campus Ministry are contributed annually to the college. Learn more at www.cornellcollege.edu.

